These could be initiatives within your unit, helpful external articles and resources, and UM programs.

Inclusive Teaching Initiative

I attended this meeting last month. Real change is happening here. Each liaison is empowered to address unique challenges to their specific department or unit.

Faculty Communities for Inclusive Teaching (<http://crlt.umich.edu/FCIT>): "The Faculty Communities for Inclusive Teaching initiative, open to all instructional faculty and co-sponsored by the Vice Provost for Equity, Inclusion and Academic Affairs, is designed to build faculty capacity for supporting an inclusive campus climate through their teaching in classrooms, clinics, studios, or labs. Funds of up to $1000 will be awarded for projects that assemble small groups of faculty to discuss and learn together about inclusive teaching practices. Funds can support activities scheduled any time during the Winter Term"

- Call for nominations: Fall 2017 applications due on Monday, December 4

Programs in the Library

- Inclusive Instruction Toolkit: Librarians often provide course-integrated instruction that may mean only interacting with a class one or two times during a semester. This toolkit was designed to address this unique issue and offers strategies for incorporating inclusive strategies into this model.
- DEI&A at the Library, includes strategic plan
